

Workstream Overview

There are 800,000 self-employed and contract staff in the UK construction market.

We want them to go paperless.

800,000 UK +

Workstream makes hiring, managing and organising the labour market easy*.

A well-run site is an efficient site. Why let your management run into disarray with hundreds of documents, forms, and more?

We hate timesheets just as much as you do. Get total oversight of your staff with our simple web app and stop wasting time doing the wrong kind of digging.

The contracting industry won't take control of the administrative heavy lifting.

Why make things harder than you have to? We've built a platform that makes your life easier, more profitable, and faster.

*As easy as this guy makes pouring concrete look.

Workstream offers the opportunity of tangible growth to contractors across the sector.

By reducing drag across documentation, team management and conflict resolution, the platform allows ambitious contractors to streamline and improve their workflow and increase their profits.

A platform designed to do the heavy lifting.

On top of that, it allows engaged parties to run a tighter ship. Project success is ensured to a higher degree by using a platform designed to do the heavy lifting.

Easier project management means less conflict. It also means quicker payments.

Need three reasons to try Workstream?

We've built a platform that makes your life easier, more profitable, and faster.

Keep reading →

1

Cashflow visibility

Increasing visibility across the supply chain allows pricing to be more transparent and easier to discuss with clients. It also means you can get paid faster.

2

Bookkeeping autonomy

Workstream allows all records to be stored and displayed in a simple, direct and easily communicated manner.

Removing inconsistencies leads to better accountability.

3

Tracked approvals

The friction we've come to accept with bigger projects has been completely removed thanks to a simple, cohesive approach across systems and users.

Meet Danny

Danny wants to make his old job redundant.

Workstream was created by Danny Stuart in 2020 during a global lockdown.

Danny has spent the last 10 years in conflict resolution – specifically, at helping get to the bottom of massive issues on building sites, construction works and more across the UK. From £300m projects at airports, biomass facilities and more, Danny has seen first-hand the issues in transparency, onboarding and compatibility.

In a market dominated by manpower, so much manual labour is wasted on paperwork. Across hundreds of projects, Danny saw just how much time, effort and money was being wasted staying on top of all the paperwork – all because it wasn't cohesive.

In every other industry, they've got the digital solution. Not here. So we decided to make a platform that automated the time-consuming stuff so contractors can control their sites, stop wasting effort, and get paid on time.

Our early adopters

Market fit.

This platform has the opportunity to be used across sites in Europe, the US and beyond. Workstream is a product that helps remove risk, increase productivity and streamline projects across a multitude of applications in the labour sector.

By empowering an 800,000+ strong workforce into more productive and easier site and staff management, Workstream allows total transformation of the labour industry for good.

We believe that every contractor, staff member, and C-level executive wants this solution to be implemented across the board. Put simply, it revolutionises the industry – and helps everyone make more money.

How does it work?

Workstream allows full control and oversight of labouring jobs, sites and projects.

Our platform is designed and built with user experience at the forefront. An intuitive UI (User Interface) lets users navigate, manage and plan their time, teams and more in a simple, one-stop-shop.

Full control and oversight mean documents can be stored and shared (with contractors or clients) on a secure platform. Visibility is key to productivity – so no more time is wasted finding the right document or running through notebooks.

It's all in one place.

Alongside this, the platform has been designed to keep everyone within the ecosystem accountable. Honesty is a critical value within the brand, and this honesty is reflected in the level of visibility allowed inside the platform.

Contractors won't wait on cashflow due to simple human errors anymore.

Join today.

goworkstream.io | info@goworkstream.io

